Foreman Training in Jobsite Management of Resources

September 22, 2009

8:00 am – 4:00 pm

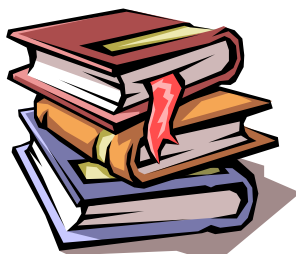

Southeastern Michigan Chapter Office

2735 Bellingham Drive

Troy, MI 48083

(248) 720-2727

Cost: $290 Chapter Members – $345 Non-Chapter Members

The foremen are the key in job productivity and profitability. Their technical know-how can be enhanced by focused training on managerial and supervisory education. This seminar gives experienced foremen an opportunity to learn resource planning and management as an additional skill to help improve job productivity. Each participant will have an opportunity to collaborate with other experienced foremen and better understand their role in the job resource management. Participants will learn: job planning; scheduling; material handling; material return; labor management; jobsite meeting management and preparation; job productivity tracking and management; time management and critical risk and path management.

This workshop is led by Dr. Perry Daneshgari, an Adjunct Professor at the University of Michigan. Perry has extensive background in improving productivity and profits in various industries.
